Alberta Sunshine Makes More Sugar

The tariff board, inquiring into sugar production in Canada and of which M. N. Campbell, who visited the district recently is a leading member, has recommended that 200,000 acres more of beets might very advantageously be planted to beets in the Lethbridge district, paid Southern Alberta a fine compliment in his report, which contained the following: In the irrigated areas around Lethbridge Alberta, there is produced 16 tons of sugar beets to the acres equivalent to 3,800 pounds of sugar. Sugar content of the Alberta beets average 25 per cent higher than that of Ontario beets, it is said. It is estimated another 200,000 acres could be brought into sugar beet production, beet crops being grown two years out of four.

This should be a source of encouragement to local beet growers, and leads us to hope that possibly two more factories may be erected in this section of the province, not to the extent of killing the goose that lays the golden egg, but to the extent of supplying a greater portion of the sugar demands of the Dominion, and if this advantage exists as regarding Alberta beet sugar, then the Dominion should use its good graces where growers would be to the best advantage in the productions of this crop, even to the discouragement of it in sections where it does not do so good.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hanesek of Edmonton spent the weekend in Raymond with relatives returning to the capital city on Sunday afternoon.

Yankees Take First Two Games

At the conclusion of the first two world series baseball games the Yankees of New York were half way to another world pennant when they defeated the Cincinnati Reds by scores of 2-1 Wednesday and 4-0 Thursday. Both games were full of interest all the way.

On Wednesday Red Ruffing and Derringer for New York and the Reds respectively were the pitchers, and on Thursday Pearson was working for the Yanks and Bucky Walters the sinker ball artist for the Reds. Dickey for the Yanks and Lombardi for the Reds are catching.

The teams are travelling to day, and will reopen the series in Cincinnati on Saturday, the game coming over the Canadian Broadcasting system at 11:15 a.m. The Sunday game will also be broadcast at the same time, the first time a Canadian station has carried a Sunday baseball broadcast.

The orchestra had been touring and playing for dances in B.C. for some months past.

District Governor Meets Rotarians

DISTRICT GOVERNOR

The annual visit of the District Governor of Rotary District 116, to the local Rotary Club, took place Thursday night, when local Rotarians and their ladies to the number of about 40, gathered in a most enjoyable supper and program, to listen to the message of the Governor.

This year's Governor is John A. Campbell, K. C. of the Pas, Manitoba, and his address on the four lane of Rotary Service, and of how they might function to make the world a better and happier place for all of us, was listened to with interest by all present. Along with this talk were the following program numbers, Vocal Solo by T. K. Roberts, Doll Dance, by Mose Fromm's step dancer, Quartette by the Bennett sisters and Corinne Higgins, and a piano solo by Mrs. Emma Dahl. Community singing was also enjoyed by the group with Mrs. Dahl at the piano.

Three new members Frank Thorpe, and Hyrum and Moses Fromm were welcomed into the local Club and the charge read to them by A. H. Zabriskie, a past president of the Club.

The Club Service Committee with J. W. Evans as Chairman, had charge of the arrangements and the supper was served in the rotunda of the Church, after which the program was adjourned to the Relief Society room.

John A. Campbell

After the program, the Governor met with the Directors and Committee Chairmen in a Club Assembly for a few minutes and listened to the reports of the various committees on their projects. He seemed to feel that the Rotary work in the Town was progressing favorably and the detail work of the organization in good hands.

The War Continues In Europe

REPORTERS SEE NEW UNIFORMS FOR SOLDIERS

MODERN STRAEMLINING STYLE REVEALED—RESEMBLE SKI OUTFIT

New khaki uniforms of a loose, blousy pattern with no buttons to shine and no puttees to roll, will be issued to the Canadian Active Service Force as soon as the factories can turn them out. Preliminary announcements of the change were made some time ago.

A sample of the new garb, substantially the same as the new standard uniforms of the British army, was displayed to newspapermen in Ottawa by the Department of National Defence. Compared with the old style outfit worn in the first Great War and since, the new battle clothes are stream-lined and somewhat resemble skiing outfits.

The uniform consists of a roomy, wide-sleeved blouse some thing halfway between the old fashioned tunic and a civilian wind-breaker, and a pair of loose fitting trousers with a high waist and plenty of room around the hips.

At the ankles the trousers are fitted with cloth tabs and buttons similar to those commonly worn on the cuffs of men's overcoat. For duty the trousers will be buttoned tight, about the ankles and enclosed beneath canvas gaiters, about six inches high. The gaiters may be discarded, the strap unbuttoned and the trousers worn as ordinary slacks when off duty.

The headgear is a wedgeshaped cap, built on the same lines as the forage cap worn by the Royal Canadian Air Force. The cap is worn over the right ear but may be adjusted to cover the whole head including ears, neck and forehead, in bad weather.

Only two buttons are visible on the whole uniform, those on the shoulder straps. They are dull colored and require no polishing. Buttons fastening the front of the tunic and the pockets are hidden.

The blouse fits snugly around the waist where it is fastened with a strap of its own material. It has a turn-down collar, like the more recent issues of the old uniform, which closes at the neck with hook and eye. Unlike the older style however, the collar may be opened at the neck for comfort without appearing unsightly.

Trousers have the usual side and one hip pocket with two additional pockets on the front of the thigh. On the right thigh is a small pocket for first aid kit while on the left thigh is a large one in which the wedge shaped cap may be carried when a steel helmet is worn.

The material is similar to the standard army khaki serge. Regimental badges will be worn on the shoulder straps and badges of rank on the sleeves.

The new uniform will be worn by all arms of the service except mounted cavalry. Officers' uniforms will follow the same pattern but may be of better quality material when purchased by the officers themselves.

Cardinal Mundelein, 67 year old Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Church in Chicago, died in his sleep early Monday morning. He was a leader in the Catholic clergy in United States and had never been afraid to speak his mind on topics of general interest.

Pages are filled every day with reports of the useless waste of life and property occasioned by the war. We say useless because no good is being accomplished, and nothing will result at the end but what could have been settled by arbitration had parties interested been at all reasonable.

According to reports, the Allies are definitely getting the best of the encounter on the Westwall, repeated German thrusts being beaten off with loss of life on both sides, but heaviest on the Nazi forces because of their being unprotected in these skirmishes. Airplane fighting goes on and here the fighting seems to be about even. Reconnaissance planes on both sides are repeatedly attacked, and some of the pilots either shot down or taken prisoner when forced to land.

On the sea, according to a fighting speech of Winston Churchill First Lord of the Admiralty, the first of this week, Britain is definitely forging a head, and has the U boat men ace fairly well under control with more effective measures being introduced all the time. Nearly 300,000 tons of contraband, consigned to Germany has been seized by the British, and Wednesday reported the capture of a German submarine by a French sub.

The game of chess between European countries still goes on. Russia is making Estonia, and other small neighboring countries do her bidding because of threats of violence, and on the other hand, due to the ruthless nature of the U boat warfare of Germany and the sinking of neutral shipping the Norwegian countries are lodging strong protests and threats against this practice. Turkey and Italy have made no definite announcements as to where their sympathies lie, and no doubt, all parties concerned would be glad to know just what to expect from these nations. Never before in the history of the world have diplomats for the nations jockeyed for advantages as in the present case, and that half has never been told.

Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag was characterized as entirely unacceptable by the major powers as offering any hope for peace. It was typical of the Fuehrer who wanted everything and wanted to give nothing. Now that Poland had been crushed he said there was nothing left to fight for in Europe. Official statements maintain that no hope can be held for peace, based on anything that his Friday morning speech offered.

RAYMOND, THE SUGAR CITY

Properly and appropriately named as "The Sugar City of Alberta," Raymond amasses the largest town of the province, with a population of nearly 20,000, and growing steadily. While other lines of activity have been established in building Raymond, as a town it possesses more to sugar and its allied industries than any other one thing.

At the turn of the century, when the sugar and Knight families, pioneer sugar men of Utah, came to Canada, it was in search of growing land for cattle. These men were attracted to what Raymond and district had to offer, and so reported. The father visited the country, he was interested in it from a colonization standpoint, having had experience in the sugar industry, visualizing the possibilities of the district as a sugar center, and since a "sugar" when it was decided to erect a sugar factory in Alberta, Raymond, named after the pioneer knight.

The father and son, and the town as the "Sugar City," the father says, "down the cutting of the mower and cut a deep furrow from the town without an interruption for a few miles. Raymond's settlement was the nucleus of the province's dispensary the post office, with all the mail dumped into a box and people helping themselves and the principal gossip center of the town. Even at that time, with the construction of the irrigation canal in progress farther south and west, the sugar factory was in mind and in that early time, the Knights agreed to build a certain number of miles of canal for so many thousands of acres of land, and this became the real estate magnets of the district, and ever since have been to the fore in the settlement of the country surrounding Raymond, clear to the top of the ridge.

The early adventure in sugar-making was not without its troubles. Falling prices for the manufactured product, raising prices for grain, and misunderstandings between beet growers and the Factory management finally caused the abandonment of the industry, and the plant was moved into Lethbridge. It was not long until the loss was keenly felt. Something in the program was missing. Negotiations were opened with the Utah-Idaho Sugar Co., and after years of work by the Board of Trade, headed in that time by J. H. Walker, and other leading men of the town and Southern Alberta, the Company finally decided to open a Canadian Sugar Factories Ltd., and today with its two plants, and another one to be erected when the time is ripe, Southern Alberta is sweetening the foods of Western Canadians, with more than 22,000 acres of beets being harvested this year roughly 500 men employed in the manufacture of sugar, and thousands of acres of land being made better every year because of the intensive cultivation necessary for a good crop of beets. Such is Raymond "the Sugar City."

Without making this too long, we should mention in years past Henry Holmes, pioneer farmer of the district, brought at least one World's Championship for wheat to Raymond, and thousands of awards have been won in grain competition by our farmers. Today, as result of the by products of the sugar factory, and the fine way alfalfa works into rotation program, Raymond and district is forging to the front as the greatest lamb and cattle feeding district in the province, and our Red Label Beef Feeders Association, aside from furnishing thousands of head of choice beef and lamb to market each year, are winning their full share of honors at exhibitions where beef cattle are shown.

Figures could be quoted which would prove to the most skeptical the splendid cash returns of beets as a crop, and the money put into circulation by the industry, but this is not a brief to prove that end, but merely to relate that the vision of the Knights, which started sugar, while a failure financially, was a decided success in proving the possibilities of sugar in Southern Alberta, and laid well the foundation for its success today in "The Sugar City" of Alberta.

STORING VEGETABLES

The storage of vegetables for winter use is a simple procedure and yet it is surprising how large a quantity of vegetables lose their quality by mid winter or are thrown out of the cellars by early spring because of improper curing and poor storage conditions.

At this Station it has been found that two things are essential for the successful storage of fresh vegetables for winter use. One is a good product in good condition. The other is ventilation. A good good nyinwa33eN good storage conditions. A good vegetable in good condition is one that has been well grown, secondly is one that is free of insect injuries and diseases that are likely to give rise to trouble in storage and thirdly is one that has been carefully and correctly harvested. Good storage conditions are those where temperatures can be maintained just above the freezing point, secondly, where the atmosphere is reasonably moist and thirdly, where the vegetables may be surrounded by a free circulation of air.

Of the vegetables usually stored for winter use onions, cabbage, carrots, turnips, beets, parsnips, potatoes, celery, squash and pumpkin are the most important. Experience has shown that the vegetables must be cool and thoroughly dry on the surface before they are placed in storage. Therefore a cool, dry and dry day is the best time for harvesting. On several occasions carrots have been harvested on a bright and hot day. Within 10 days after harvesting the roots rotted away. All the root vegetable except turnips, potatoes and onions are packed in moist sand in storage. Clean and sharp river sand is best. The roots are placed in the bins in layers 8 inches deep and the sand is then sifted among them until they are thoroughly covered. Several layers are put up in this way until the pile is three or three and a half feet deep.

Cabbage heads are trimmed of their roots and outer leaves and placed on slatted shelves. Another approved method is to leave the roots on and to hang the heads up to the rafters by their main roots and with all the leaves left on. The outer leaves dry closely around the heads and prevent the rapid evaporation of moisture. Cabbage has been known to keep fresher in this way and rotting has also been delayed.

The skin of squash and pumpkin must be hard when they are stored. Similarly, onions must be firm and the tops should be thoroughly dried off. All three types of vegetables are always placed on slatted shelves or on a floor in a dry and airy place.

Turnips and potatoes are placed uncovered in bins. They must be dry when stored. It is often found advantageous to place potatoes in piles in the field properly protected from frost for a week or two, thus permitting them to undergo a "sweat" before they are stored. When large quantities of potatoes are stored in one place ventilators are placed in the piles.

Celery plants are taken up in the field and all the roots left on and are then replanted in beds of soil in the cellar. During warm weather a portion of the leaves is removed before this replanting is done. When the soil around the plants is watered in the cellar, care is taken so that the water does not fall into the crowns. Water in the crowns of celery plants is generally responsible for a condition known as heart rot.

Edmonton Letter

(By T. B. Windros)

Edmonton, October 2nd—Alberta citizens and all Canada face a crisis this month with the future freedom of the province and of the Dominion possibly at stake, as the result of provincial politicians.

Enemy naval units are known to be cruising off Canada's coasts. Canadian cities on the Atlantic & the Pacific and even the towns up the Fraser river valley, have been forced to make plans for air raid precautions and defence. Wise heads in the interior are remembering that Bolshevik Russia is only five hours away by air, or two days by sea from Canadian soil in the northwest and that Hudson bay, which almost 200 years ago was the scene of a great naval battle between European forces with Canada as the prize and now is a regular summer route for European shipping, can bring transatlantic invaders right into the heart of the dominion.

There are no defences against invaders, either in northwestern Canada or in Central Canada. They never have been necessary up to this time, because a united dominion and democracy and dependence on Britain's strength have been adequate.

But now, faced with the peril of a war of aggression if Britain finds herself unable to smother the terrific odds against her, Canada finds herself divided by provincial politicians. Maurice Duplessis, premier of Quebec, has suddenly forced a provincial election without any platform or any reason other than rebellion against the national government of Canada and a manufactured claim of provincial rights. To Alberta citizens, the part that Alberta inter placed on slatted shelves or on a ities have played in the Quebec situation is important, particularly in view of the fact that each of the two provinces is just far enough removed from the sea to have a false faith in security from invasion.

These were the events through which Premier William Aberhart and the Social Credit organization figured in the present national crisis centering in Quebec.

On June 18 this year, Hon. Lucien Maynard, French Canadian minister of municipal affairs in Alberta, acted as spokesman for Premier Aberhart at a meeting of the Quebec Social Credit league in Quebec City, but made no objection as the convention passed a resolution opposing any participation in war "within or without" Canadian territory and opposing even the supply of munitions.

On September 5, two days after Britain declared war in the defence of freedom and democracy, the universal conscription of Canadian "man power, industry and finance" was demanded by Hon. W. D. Herridge as leader of the New Democracy party, with which Aberhart had thrown in his lot federally.

The same day, in Edmonton, Aberhart issued a statement on behalf of his cabinet and the federal Social Credit members who had met in caucus, making a demand for universal conscription of finance and industry "before conscription of individual man power."

September 6, the Social Credit league in Quebec issued a statement formally opposing any conscription.

September 8, after caucuses of federal Social Credit members of parliament with Herridge present, John H. Blackmore, leader of the Social Credit party in the commons, said that conscription of man power, wealth and industry, all were necessary and inter-dependent.

September 9, the president and the organizer of the Quebec Social Credit league repudiated Aberhart, Blackmore and Herridge and reaffirmed the Quebec Social Credit-ers' opposition to conscription.

September 16, told of his repudiation by Quebec Social Credit-ers, Aberhart issued statement saying they were entitled to their own opinions on conscription but warning what would happen to their organization if Hitler invaded Quebec.

September 17, Aberhart denied in Calgary he ever had declared himself in favor of conscription of man-power.

September 19, Quebec Social Credit organization repeated repudiation of Blackmore and Herridge, but did not include Aberhart this time, although

STEW OF MIXED FISH AND SUCCOTASH

Cut into pieces of convenient size one-half pound of cooked or canned salmon, haddock, fish-an haddie, or any white fleshed fish. Or different kinds of any variety of left-over fish will do quite as well; or the stew could be made of one kind only, or of other fish and oysters, or lobsters. Chop two slices of raw pork and brown in the bottom of a stewpan. Over this lay the pieces of fish, add seasonings of salt and pepper to taste—also a couple of tablespoons of capers or chopped pickles, if available—and pour over all a quart can of succotash. A cupful of water or fish stock may be added if the succotash is too dry. Cover the whole and simmer for twenty minutes. Serve directly from the stewpan, with a dish-coller round it, or a folded napkin.

SALAD

Mix a cupful of diced cold potatoes with a cup of diced cold carrots—or raw grated carrot and mayonnaise and garnish with minced parsley.

DESSERT

Arrange thinly sliced pieces of oranges in serving dish and sprinkle with powdered sugar and southern style coconut. Repeat till oranges are used up and top with coconut.

Blackmore obviously had taken up his position in the commons for general conscription as a result of the caucus conference with Aberhart.

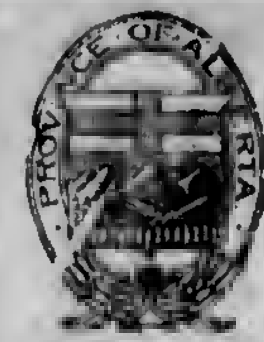

September 25, Duplessis issued his call for the Quebec election on October 25, not stating any specific grievance but fighting the federal government and calling for autonomy. Quebec Social Credit-ers evidently had anticipated the election. Federal government, however, had gone on record, even before parliament met, as being opposed to conscription of man-power but mobilizing industry and wealth.

L. D. Byrne, propagandist "technician" brought to Canada by the Alberta government at a minimum of $6,000 a year had written and had published in Ottawa, in the meantime, an article attacking the Canadian and blaming "finance" for the war, the imperial governments and ignoring the fact that the National Socialist government of Germany and the super-Socialist Communist government of Russia, both of which control absolutely the financing of their countries started the war by marling into little Poland, and that Britain and France, "capitalist" nations were forced to go to war in self-defence and in the defence of freedom from such forms of dictatorial world-destroying socialism.

Trying to prepare for defence of the dominion in the months and years to come and at the same time preparing for efforts frontier by helping Britain now to keep Europe as Canada's rather than letting the enemy come to Canada, the dominion government of Canada also was preparing this week to stop political rebellion within the dominion for the sake of the safety of Canada.

Other important events of the week include these:

Alberta business men reported that business in all parts of the province is on the upturn and that the outlook is brighter in spite of the general gloom of war and internal disunion. The same time, had an estimated "treasury branch" scheme, an estimated total of about $80,000,000 on year totals about 145,000,000 deposit, showing that the province's business is getting on its feet and that the treasury is being done by the treasury every time, as a result of the branches is tiny.

federal government's policy.

The provincial treasury department celebrated the first anniversary of the "credit house" being called, although the Alberta government had put through legislation last spring doubling the former time allowed for a byelection. The vacancy was caused by the death of W. E. Hayes, Social Credit member.

The provincial government's "price spread" board continued to talk about preventing profiteering—which the federal government already has taken steps to prevent.

Board Of Trade Meeting

A Board of Trade meeting was held Monday night to discuss the water conservation question which is demanding so much attention at present. Due to the wet harvest and press of fall work only a small number was present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

After discussing the conservation scheme, it was decided to ask Frank R. Taylor and James J. Walker to represent the Board at the meeting held in Lethbridge Wednesday, and they were also empowered to draft the resolution voicing the Board's sympathy with the plan to erect a key dam and reservoir just west of Bradshaw to trap the spring run off of the St. Mary's river and make a large body of water available for his district and on east during the low water season.

The new Stirling road was also discussed and a motion passed asking the Board of Trade Executive to draft a resolution of appreciation for the construction of this road, one copy to be sent to the Municipal Council and one to the Department of Public Works at Edmonton.

An uncertified report of finances on the Dominion Day Stampede and Race Meet estimated a deficit of around $200,000. The detailed statement will be presented at the meeting called for the first Monday of November.

Stake President T. Geo. Wood left Wednesday to attend the Semi Annual Conference of the L. D. S. Church in Salt Lake City.

PROBLEMS OF EVERYDAY LIFE

(By Dr. M. M. Lappin.)

"I am approaching 35 and I have very few friends none, in fact, that you would call intimates. I cannot make friends easily, and when people invite me to their homes I feel it is not because they want my company, but just because they want to be polite", writes Ellen.

Perhaps you are not altogether to blame for your non social character. It may be due at least in part, to your early training. Sometimes parents mistake only tell their children to keep themselves to themselves and needlessly advise them to be careful about making friends. However well intended, such advice should be given with caution.

Of course your reserve may be of your own creation. I have known men and women who deliberately cultivated reserve because they feared the criticisms of others, or felt themselves unfit to compete with their fellows. If you are honest with yourself you will be able to tell whether that is the case with you.

Try to realize that the world in which you live was designed for social living, and that it is a poor business to deprive your self of the joys of social contacts. A non social tendency such as you betray only makes for loneliness and unhappiness. You must endeavor to change your way of living and begin to develop the social capacity that is latent within you.

There is much you can do to help yourself. Cultivate a good hobby and that will give you something to talk about. Join some club or society and give yourself opportunity for conversation with other people. You must mingle with other people even

Mrs. Ralph Byrne.

W. E. Ross of the Calgary Power Co., Lethbridge, was in Raymond Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce King who have been in Sudbury for several years past, are visiting in Raymond at the present time.

"Six month's hard labor, your lordship! I'll kill me. I'll never live to do it!"

"There, there, don't start worrying about it now," said the magistrate. "Just go quietly to prison and do as much of it as you can."

If you have to force yourself to do so at first. Do not be afraid, it will come quite naturally to you in time.

The difference between those who make friends easily and those who do not is just that some have developed their social capacity and others have allowed it to lie dormant. Take your place in life, and let criticism and competition be an incentive to you to live nobly and creatively in fellowship with others, and you will find both friends and happiness.

Have you a problem? Let the author of this series help you with it. Write to him today. He will tell you what to do without revealing your identity. If you desire a personal reply enclose a stamped addressed envelope. Write to Dr. M. M. Lappin, 501 Ryrie Bldg. Toronto Ont.

THE 1940" Dodge" HAS STYLE and VALUE

Everyone who has been fortunate enough to have seen the 1940 Model Dodge we have been demonstrating during the past week has remarked upon the unique style and finish. Style is an essential embodiment in a new car. Style gives the owner a sense of well-being, the same as good clothes. But style without quality would be ridiculous... so the New Dodge has maintained its traditional high standard of mechanical quality... it's a Good Car.

NEWS NOTES

L. D. King, local Ford dealer returned from Calgary Thursday night after attending the Ford Dealers convention there.

Derald West is building a new house on the lot he purchased just east of Mrs. Larson's home. Geo. Thompson has been helping with the carpenter work.

It feels like fall now alright and frost is seen on the ground almost every morning. There have been no really cold nights yet, although vegetation of all kinds has practically stopped growing.

Customs officials are installed now at the new port at Del Bonita. A good grade is being built over this route and because of the Del Bonita oilfield it is expected that traffic will be heavy the year around over this road.

250,000 additional men have been called to the colors in Britain as "peace ultimatums" were rejected. No hope was ever held that the Allies would accept Herr Hitler's peace proposals.

Mr. and Mrs. Rayo Woolf were in Cardston Wednesday attending the funeral services of Mrs. Woolf's grandmother Mrs. Talitha M. Carlson. Mr. Carlson passed away several years ago. We extend our sympathy to Mrs. Woolf in her sorrow.

A plan is on foot now by the newly created Polish government to enlist an army of Poles in the United States and Canada to fight for the recreation of the homeland. It is estimated there are 5,000,000 Polish citizens in Canada and the United States and an effort will be made to enlist a battalion of 200,000 from amongst this number.
